

THE PERSPECTIVE OF HISTORICAL SOCIOLOGY

The Individual as
Homo-Sociologicus through
Society and History

THE PERSPECTIVE OF HISTORICAL SOCIOLOGY

The Individual as
Homo-Sociologicus through
Society and History

BY

JIRÍ ŠUBRT

Charles University, Faculty of Humanities, Prague, Czech Republic

United Kingdom – North America – Japan
India – Malaysia – China

Emerald Publishing Limited
Howard House, Wagon Lane, Bingley BD16 1WA, UK

First edition 2017

Copyright © 2017 Emerald Publishing Limited

Reprints and permissions service

Contact: permissions@emeraldinsight.com

No part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, transmitted in any form or by any means electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise without either the prior written permission of the publisher or a licence permitting restricted copying issued in the UK by The Copyright Licensing Agency and in the USA by The Copyright Clearance Center. Any opinions expressed in the chapters are those of the authors. Whilst Emerald makes every effort to ensure the quality and accuracy of its content, Emerald makes no representation implied or otherwise, as to the chapters' suitability and application and disclaims any warranties, express or implied, to their use.

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

ISBN: 978-1-78743-364-9 (Print)

ISBN: 978-1-78743-363-2 (Online)

ISBN: 978-1-78743-456-1 (Epub)

ISOQAR certified
Management System,
awarded to Emerald
for adherence to Environmental standard
ISO 14001:2004.

Certificate Number 1985
ISO 14001

INVESTOR IN PEOPLE

List of Reviewers

Prof. Dennis Smith, Loughborough University

Prof. Johann P. Arnason, La Trobe University

Dr. Massimiliano Ruzzeddu, University N. Cusano in Rome

Contents

| | |
|---|-----------|
| List of Reviewers | v |
| Acknowledgments | xi |
| | |
| Part I. The Perspective of Historical Sociology (By Way of Introduction) | 1 |
| The Path to Historical Sociology | 3 |
| History and Sociology | 7 |
| Theoretical Dilemmas | 16 |
| | |
| Part II. Societies and the Processes of Change | 21 |
| The Dimension of Time | 21 |
| Temporalized Sociology | 24 |
| The Division of Historical Time | 28 |
| History as Life's Teacher | 31 |
| Social Change — Different Approaches to its Observation and Analysis | 33 |
| The Theories of Cyclical Development | 36 |
| Theories of Developmental Discontinuity and Breaks | 40 |
| The Materialist Conception of History | 40 |
| Revolution | 42 |
| Collective Actors of Social Change | 43 |
| The Theory of Breaks | 44 |
| The Theory of Linear Continuous Development | 47 |
| Sequential and Processual Explanatory Models | 47 |
| Evolutionary Theory | 49 |
| Some New Approaches to the Issue of Social Change | 52 |
| Crisis as a Challenge | 53 |
| Etymology and Semantics of the Concept of Crisis | 54 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| Risk, Crisis, Catastrophe, and Collapse | 56 |
| One Concept — Many Manifestations | 59 |
| Plurality of Explanatory Frameworks | 61 |
| Current Issues | 64 |
| Part III. Ideas of the Sociological “Founders” | 67 |
| Sociology as a Science of Social Statics and Dynamics | 68 |
| The Evolution of the Social Organism | 72 |
| Historical Materialism | 73 |
| Predecessors | 74 |
| The Thinker Who Wished to Change the World | 78 |
| Explaining the Emergence of Capitalism | 84 |
| Digression on the Early rationalization of time | 92 |
| Sociology as a Science about Social Facts | 102 |
| A Digression on Collective Memory | 109 |
| Part IV. Systems, Structures, and Functions | 117 |
| The Social System and Evolution | 119 |
| Inequality, Stratification, Mobility | 123 |
| Theories of Conflict | 128 |
| Social Functions of Conflicts | 130 |
| Social Conflict in Modern Society | 133 |
| Appendix to Conflict Theory | 136 |
| Structuralism and Poststructuralism | 137 |
| Invariable Structures | 140 |
| Variable Structures | 143 |
| Functional Differentiation and Its Consequences | 146 |
| World-System | 149 |
| Part V. Civilizational Analysis | 155 |
| The Civilizing Process | 159 |
| Paradigms of Human Condition | 167 |
| Civilizations of the Axial Age | 172 |
| Part VI. The Modern World, Its Formative Processes and Transformations | 183 |
| Pathways to Modern Society | 185 |
| Citizens and the State | 185 |
| Different Types of Social Revolution | 186 |
| Revolutions in the International Context | 187 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| The Formation of Modern Nations | 188 |
| Nationalism and High Culture | 190 |
| The National Interest | 194 |
| The Dark Side of Modernization | 197 |
| The Banality of Evil | 198 |
| Advocate for the Open Society | 200 |
| A Critique of Ideological Myths and Totalitarian Tendencies | 203 |
| Wars, Conflicts, and Violence | 207 |
| Coercion and Violence | 208 |
| The Networks of Power | 211 |
| From the First Modernity to the Second Modernity | 212 |
| Story of Modernization Theory | 213 |
| The Transformations of Contemporary Societies | 216 |
| | |
| Part VII. The Human Individual and History | 229 |
| Individualization in the Perspective of Historical–Sociological Thinking | 230 |
| Individualism and Holism | 232 |
| Homo Sociologicus | 242 |
| The Human Individual and Its Place in History | 254 |
| | |
| Bibliography | 265 |
| Index | 289 |

Acknowledgments

This book is the culmination of my longstanding labor in the field of historical sociology. My approach within this has been accompanied by a number of scholars who have helped me research and establish my orientation. At the very beginning, during my studies at the Charles University in Prague at the turn of the 1980s, these included my teacher Eduard Urbanek. Later, in the 1990s, when I began to get acquainted with the work of Norbert Elias, I was very much helped by Hermann Korte, who at that time worked at the University of Hamburg. Of great importance to my professional development too were repeated study visits at the University of Vienna spent alongside Reinhold Knoll, at the University of Konstanz alongside Bernhard Giesen, and at the Free University of Berlin alongside Harald Wenzel. My approach to historical sociology has been associated with my interest in time, in which context I associated with Patrick Baert of Cambridge University, who greatly influenced me with his concept of temporalized sociology. Johann Pal Arnason and Willfried Spohn have played key roles in my direction in the last decade, and with their help and support I founded the Department of Historical Sociology at Charles University in Prague and designed the content of the study program taught since 2009. Last but not least, I cannot forget Prof. Dennis Smith from Loughborough University, whom I have consulted on many topics over the past few years. The book I present here to the reader would not have been written without the help of Martin Tharp, a doctoral student of historical sociology, and the long-term cooperation of my friend, proofreader, and language advisor Edward Everett. In addition, this book represents one of the outputs of the Homo sociologicus revisited project (No.: 15-14478S), financially supported by the Grant Agency of the Czech Republic GACR. I would also like to express my thanks to the representatives of Emerald Publishing for their friendly assistance in guiding this book to the light of publication.