

Index

- Academic Staff Union of Universities (ASUU), 37
- African Independent Television (AIT), 48
- Al-Qaeda, 72–73, 210
- Arab Spring, 7, 58–64, 88
 - in Egypt, 58–59, 63
 - in Tunisia, 58–59, 63
 - use of FB and Twitter, 62–64
- 9/11 attacks, 73
- Avgeropoulos, Yorgos, 192, 195

- Belarusian conflict, 88
- Biafra conflict, 35
- Boko Haram, 2, 20, 23–24, 26, 29, 36, 40–41, 79, 205, 207, 211
 - alliance between ISIS and, 180
 - ethnic, religious and political undertones, 154–157
 - evolution of, 143
 - framing issues and strategy, 157–161
 - core framing tasks, 161–165
 - modus operandi and targets, 167–168
 - situating Islamism, 165–167
 - hierarchical leadership structure, 146–148
 - ideological propaganda of religion, 179
 - influence of global jihad movements on, 174
 - influence of ICTs on, 168–173
 - psychological effects, 177
 - leadership of, 178
 - modus operandi, tactical repertoire and organisational set-up, 167–168, 174–175
 - networking style, 171–172
 - mobilisation and
 - propaganda using digital media, 172–180
 - propaganda and psychological manipulations, 178–179
 - pledge of allegiance, 179
 - religious ideology, 196
 - socio-political, economic and cultural motivations, 149–154
 - in terms of CC framework, 183
 - videos, 175–178, 182–183
- Bouazizi, Mohamed, 58
- Bo Xilai, 77
- Burkinabe Protests, 68

- CAQDAS software, 24
- Communication tools, role in democracy, 54
- Computer-mediated communication (CMC), principle of, 5
- Computer-mediated environments, conflict in, 1
- Concord Group, 46–47
- Conflict movements, 54, 206
- Conflict movements in Nigeria, 1
- Conflict resolution, role of digital media

- Boko Haram movement, 180–183
- Movement for Emancipation of the Niger Delta (MEND), 202–204
- Occupy Nigeria movement, 138–142
- Congo protests, 66–67
- ‘Coup de Text’, 62
- Crna Ruka (Black 42 Hand), 71
- Cyberactivism, 53, 70
 - in Serbian terrorist movement, 71–72
- Cyberconflict (CC), 2, 53–54, 205
 - theoretical framework, 5–8, 83, 206
 - in context of conflict, 7–8
 - ethnoreligious, 6–8
 - media components, 8
 - resource mobilisation perspective, 7
 - socio-political, 5, 8
- Cyber protests, 53
- Cyber-utopians, 85
- ‘Delta-Oil’s Dirty Business’ documentary, 192
- Denial of service (DOS) attacks, 7
- Digital activism, 2, 53, 87, 111, 133, 205, 213
 - youth engagement and activism in Sub-Saharan Africa, 55–84
- Digital ICTs, 1
- Dokubo, Asari, 188
- Douglas, Susan, 54
- Egyptian revolution (2011), 58
- Egyptians Abroad in Support of Egypt, 59
- Electronic vandals, 71
- Estrada of Philippines, ousting of President, 62
- Ethnoreligious conflict, 1, 36, 57, 82–83, 143, 183, 212
 - ethnoreligious cyberconflict, 6–8
- Facebook, 1, 6, 59, 66–67, 76, 87, 211
- #FeesMustFall protest, 64–66
- Framing process of movements, 73–80
 - Boko Haram, 157–168
 - construction and preservation of meaning, 75–76
 - core framing tasks, 76
 - discursive processes, 76
 - essential constituents of, 74
 - motivational, 75
 - Movement for Emancipation of the Niger Delta (MEND), 191–195
 - Occupy Nigeria movement, 98–106, 120–133
- Gbomo, Jomo, 189, 201, 203
- Global Justice Movement (GJM), 77
- ‘GoOnline’, 87
- ‘Great Red Firewall’ tag, 86
- Green Movement protests, 85
- Guardian African Network, 68
- Hacking, 71–72
- Iceland protests (2009), 58
- Ijaw ethnic group, 196
- India vs Pakistan conflicts, 7
- India vs Pakistan conflicts
 - ethnoreligious CC, 77–78, 83
- Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs), 1

- access to, 57, 206, 208, 210–211
- in conflict scenarios, 54–55
 - in Chinese context, 86
 - in Congo protests, 66–67
 - findings, 207–212
 - organising and advocacy of SMS, 62
 - ousting of President Estrada of Philippines, 62
 - ousting of President Mugabe of Zimbabwe, 67–73
 - participation levels, correlation between, 57
 - #RMF and #FMF, 64–66
 - tactical repertoire of conflict movements, 61
- costs of communication and coordination of, 57–58
- disruptive use of, 60
- framing process and, 73–80
- future directions and developments for research, 213–214
- issues of accessibility to, 129–130
- limitations of, 84–89
- mobile structures and, 56–58
- mobilise for public relations, 180–181
- multimodal nature of, 211
- opportunity structure and, 80–84
- potential impact of, 1–2
 - on political protests, 3–8
- role in safeguarding movement actors, 72–73
- socio-political demobilising effect of, 141
- transnational nature of, 81–82
- youth engagement and activism, 53
 - in Sub-Saharan Africa, 55–84
- Israel vs Palestine conflicts, 7, 83
- Jihadi John, 79
- Jonathan, Goodluck, 42–43
- Karatzogianni CC framework, 207–208
- Kuwait's women's suffrage movement, 61
- LinkedIn, 66
- London European Forum (ESF), 77
- Maitatsine conflict, 36
- Mano, Winston, 67
- Motivational framing, 75
- Movement for Emancipation of the Niger Delta (MEND), 2, 14–15, 20, 23, 29, 32, 40, 79, 205, 207, 211
 - amnesty programme for insurgents, 203
 - as an ethnic movement with regional interest, 204
 - anti-globalisation and the anti-capitalist movements, 197
 - core framing task, 191–195
 - evolution of, 185–190
 - grievances and demands, 197, 213
 - influence of ICTs on, 190–191
 - resource for mobilisation and recruitment, 198–202
 - use of email and mobile communication, 198–199, 201–202
 - leadership of, 189–190

- membership and ethnic
 - affiliation, 188–190
 - identity of, 189
 - ranks of, 189–190
- motivational framing, 194–195
- religious undertones, 195–197
- spokespersons of, 188
- themes, 192
- videos, 199–200
- Mugabe of Zimbabwe, ousting of
 - President, 67–73
- National Association of Nigerian Students (NANS), 37
- National Executive Council (NEC), 98
- National Union of Petroleum and Natural Gas (NUPENG), 47
- Natural Gas Senior Staff Association (PENGASSAN), 47
- The Net Delusion: How Not to Liberate the World* (Morovoz), 85
- Networks of Outrage and Hope*, 131
- New social movement theory, 5
- Nigeria
 - agricultural-related activities, 41
 - corruption in, 40
 - democracy in, 38–39, 42
 - different military regimes, 37
 - economy, 41–42
 - electoral dissent in, 40
 - ethnic and political rivalry, 35–36, 42–43
 - ethnic groups in, 35
 - ICTs and digital media, 49–52
 - living standard, 41
 - media industry, 44–49
 - Concord Group, 46
 - control of information and communications, 45
 - in dictatorial regimes, 45
 - government opposition to press, 45–46
 - ICTs and digital media, 49–52
 - liberalisation of broadcast media, 47–48
 - ownership and monopoly in, 44
 - printing press, 45
 - private media, 44, 48
 - regulatory atmosphere, 48–49
 - role in safeguarding public interest, 38
 - as watchdog of society, 54
 - militant and insurgency-related conflict in, 40
 - mobile penetration in, 129
 - multilingual diversity, 33–34
 - oil and gas sector, 41–42
 - pitfalls in governance in, 39–40
 - population, 33–34
 - post-independence period, 35–36
 - leadership struggles, 36
 - post-military era, 38–44
 - protests on economic issues, 40
 - republic transitions, 35
 - rotation of power in, 43
 - socio-economic and political
 - historical context, 34–38
 - Hausa-Fulani ethnic group, 34
 - Yoruba ethnic group, 34
 - traditional labour groups and civil society actors, 37–38
 - transformative initiatives, 39
 - zoning policy, idea of, 43–44

- Nigerian Bar Association (NBA), 37
- Nigerian Broadcasting Commission (NBC), 45, 47–48
- Nigerian Labour Congress (NLC), 37, 98
- Nigerian Television Authority (NTA), 47
- Nkurunziza, President Pierre, 69
- North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), 6
- Nvivo software, 24–25, 27–30
- Obasanjo, Olusegun, 38, 40, 42
- Occupy Nigeria movement, 20, 24, 32, 79, 205–207
 - activists and members of, 134
 - central aim of, 130
 - civil society actors in, 94–96
 - conflict of interests and disconnect between negotiators and protestors, 136–137
 - core framing tasks, 106–110
 - counter-mobilisation or demobilisation effect, 130–131
 - evolution of, 91–98
 - Labour Civil Society Coalition's principal responsibility, 95–96, 125–126, 136, 140
 - NLC striking committee and, 96–97
 - framing issues and uses of ICTs, 98–106, 120–133
 - CC framework and perspectives of participants, 140
 - #ChildNotBride campaign, 135
 - 'Enough is Enough', 123
 - impact, 133–138
 - inter-civil society relations and information sharing, 120–122
 - 'Niaraland' forum, 123
 - process, 135–136
 - 'Save Nigeria Group' (SNG), 123
 - sponsored handles, 139, 141
 - tweets and FB posts, 123–126, 138–139
 - horizontal and vertical organisational structures, 131
 - political opportunity structure, 111–120
 - structure of leadership in, 93, 137
- Occupy Wall Street (OWS) movement, 5, 58, 60, 210
- Odimba, Ali Bongo, 66
- Okah, Henry, 202
- Online activism, 53
- People's Democratic Party (PDP), 40
- Political protest, impact of ICT
 - analytical framework, 3–4
 - audiovisual and textual material online, 20–24
 - case studies, 14–15
 - approach, 13–14
 - cyberconflict theoretical framework, 5–8
 - rational of, 29–32
 - data collection, 11–12
 - interviews, 12–13
 - administering, 19–20
 - interview questions, 15–16
 - participant characteristics, 16–19

- research design, 8–11
 - secondary data, 20–24
 - thematic analysis, 24–29
- The Politics of Cyberconflict* (Karatzogianni), 5–8
- Protest mobilisation and collective action
 - analytic framework, 3–4
 - factors and motivations for contentious activities, 4
 - government influence and, 4
 - psychological perspective, 3
 - rational choice approach, 4
 - relative deprivation theory, 3
- Radio Kudirat, 38, 60
- Radio Publique Africaine, 69
- Red Brigades, 61
- Resource mobilisation theory (RMT), 5, 7
- #RhodesMustFall protest, 64–66
- Skype, 66
- Socio-political cyberconflict, 1, 5, 8, 82
- Technological activism, 53
- Trade Union Congress (TUC), 98
- Traore, Alain Edouard, 68
- Tulip Revolution (2005), 61
- Tunisia revolution (2010), 58
- Twitter, 1, 6, 59, 66–67, 86, 124–125, 211
- United Action for Democracy (UAD), 98
- ‘Us vs them’, 77
- Voice of Egypt Abroad, 59
- Web 2.0, 60
- Weimann, Gabriel, 72
- WhatsApp, 67
- Women in Nigeria (WIN), 37
- Yaha worm, 78
- Yar’Adua, Umaru Musa, 43
- Youth engagement and activism in Sub-Saharan Africa, role of ICT, 55–84
 - Arab Spring, 58–64
 - framing process of movements, 73–80
 - opportunity structure, 80–84
 - #RohodesMustFall and #FeesMustFall, 64–66
- YouTube, 1, 59, 66, 86, 182, 211
- Zapatista movement of Mexico, 5–6