

Index

- Academics, 133–134
- Action-research cycle, methodology and design of, 25–26
- Adult Style Observation Schedule for Early Childhood Education (ASOS-ECE), 29
- Adult-centric practices in education, 3
- Adverse childhood experience (ACE), 126–127
- Agency, 93, 143, 146
- Audience, 40, 122–123
- Authentic participation, 64
- Authentic pupil voice, 63
- Authentic voice, 62–63
- Authenticity, 68–69

- Bolivian families, 142
- Bricolage approach, 4, 130–131
- Business model, 74–75

- Canadian Council of Young Feminists (CCYF), 209
- Chain sampling, 146–147
- Change, 210–211
- Child agency, 93
- Child participation, 92–93
 - theoretical perspectives on, 92–93
- Child Participation Assessment Tool, 14–15
- Child to Child principles, 142, 147
- Child-centred approach, 40
 - to parenting, 172
- Child-centred practices, 1, 4–5, 9–10, 16, 62, 73–74, 110–111, 178, 220
 - extending opportunities to promote, 226–227
- Child-led forest school programme, 73–74

- Child’s voice in education, 73–76
- Childhood, 10–11, 73–74, 166, 168
 - educators, 24–25
 - participation, 223
 - studies, 1, 5–6, 143, 206
 - voices, 122
- Children, 134
 - in families, 169–170
 - participation, 181
 - as social actors, 178–179
- Children’s perceptions of participation
 - key findings, 150–157
 - methodology, 146–149
 - participation, agency and voice, 143–146
- Children’s places, 179–180
- Children’s rights, 11
- Children’s voices, 2, 9–10, 145
 - building participatory contexts, 24–29
 - challenges to consideration of children’s voices in ECEC, 15–16
 - emergence, 10–12
 - first evidence of respect for, 32–35
 - first learning, 29–30
 - listening to, 12–13
 - in negotiating family rules, 169–170
 - participatory pedagogies, 30–32
 - privileged contexts in, 11–12
 - reconstruction of images of educator and child, 35
 - supporting young children’s voices in ECEC settings, 13–15
- Chile, 219
 - extending opportunities to promote child-centred practice, 226–227
 - fighting for voice, 220–221

- recognising existing opportunities of
 - childhood participation in, 224–225
 - socio-political context in, 222–224
 - youth protest in, 220
- Citizenship, 206–207
- Classroom culture, 41
- Co-production, 131
 - bricolage, 130–131
 - Lundy’s model, 122–124
 - need to amplify children’s voices of
 - parental separation, 124–127
 - reflections, 132–133, 135
 - research design, 127–129
 - sharing findings with different
 - audiences, 133–134
- Comfort zone, 116–117
- Communication, 79
- Connection with nature, 95
- Consultation, 41
- Context-based staff development, 25–26
- Convention on the Rights of the Child, 11, 201
- Conversations, 1, 7–8
- Coronavirus stir and mix as context of
 - homeschooling, 95–98
- Council of Europe, 11–12
- Creating change, 25
- Culture of advocacy, 76
- Curriculum innovation, 63

- Data gathering, 186–187
- Decision-making, 93–94, 124–125, 153, 157, 190, 192
- Democratic inclusivity, 66–67
- Dialogical approach, 93
- Diamond Model, 111–112
- Discursive intertextuality, 26
- Divorce, 122

- Early childhood education and care (ECEC), 10
 - challenges to consideration of
 - children’s voices in, 15–16
 - professionals, 12
 - supporting young children’s voices
 - in ECEC settings, 13–15
- Education, 2–3, 11, 65, 109–110
 - child’s voice in, 73–76
- Educators’ learning, 24–29
- Effective Early Learning Project, 26
- Emilio Reggio approach, 3
- Empowerment, 113–114
- Enjoyment and fun as essence of
 - homeschooling, 98–99
- Exploratory pedagogical orientation, 77

- Fado, birthplace of, 180–181
- Family Court Advisors, 126–128
- Family rules
 - child-centred approach to
 - parenting, 172
 - children’s voice in negotiating
 - family rules, 169–170
 - compliance with ethical standard, 165
 - methodology, 168
 - negotiating, 170–172
- Feedback Station, 46–48
- Fictionalised case study, 130
- Forest school (FS), 3, 73–74
 - child’s voice in education, 73–76
 - future thoughts, 86–87
 - insights from forest school research, 79–81
 - integrating forest school into
 - institutional contexts, 84–86
 - in mainstream education, 76–78
 - pedagogy of listening, 82–84
- Forest School Association, 82
- Formative training, 25
- Friendship in context of social
 - distancing and virtual
 - connection, 102–103
- General comment 12, 201

- Girls and Boys Vote Too' campaign, 225
- Habitus, 114
- Haltung, 110–111
- Happiness, 117–118
- Hierarchies, 190–192
- Holistic learning, 116–118
- Holistic model, 75–76
- Homeschooling, 92
 - coronavirus stir and mix as context of, 95–98
 - enjoyment and fun as essence of homeschooling, 98–99
 - findings, 94–103
 - friendship in context of social distancing and virtual connection, 102–103
 - importance of play and connection with nature, 99–102
 - reflective case study, 93–94
- Identity, 214–215
- Inclusion, 190–192
- Influence, 122–123
- Institutions, 12
- Intergenerational partnerships
 - added value of contribution of children and youth, 198–200
 - assigning seats at tables, 198
 - call of young people for, 200–201
 - intergenerational commitment to youth-centred practices, 202
- Kindergarten, 27
- Learning (see also Professional learning), 48, 53, 56
 - activity, 76
 - children, 166–167
 - context-based approach for professional development, 24
 - cycle, 26–27
 - enjoying, 48–51
 - fostering ongoing dialogue about, 46–47
 - maths, 51–53
 - though doing, 187–189
 - zone, 116–117
- Learning Zone Model, 116–118
- Lived experiences, 198
- Long-term programme, 77
- Lundy's model, 122–124
 - of Childhood Participation, 225
- Mainstream education
 - forest school in, 76–78
 - personal case study/reflection, 77–78
- Maths, 51–53
- Meaningfulness, 206
- Metacognition, 41
- Metacognitive role model, 56–57
- Mouraria, 180
- Multi-disciplinary children's
 - institutional contexts, 87
- My Voice Constitutes Change' project, 225
- Negotiation, 167
- Nigeria, 168
- Ombudsman for Children, 225
- Panic zone, 116–117
- Parental separation, 122
 - need to amplify children's voices of, 124–127
- Parenting, 172
- Parents, 134
- PARTICIPA project, 14–15
- Participation, 10, 111–112, 114, 143, 146, 153, 157, 214–215, 219
 - in family, 143
 - requirement for, 66–67
- Participatory childhood pedagogy, 25
- Participatory pedagogical approaches, 25
- Participatory pedagogies, 30–32
- Pedagogical intentionality, 24–29

- Pedagogy (see also Social pedagogy), 24, 75–76
of listening, 82–84
- Physical education (PE), 3, 61–62
- Places for children, 179–180
- Play and connection with nature, 99–102
- Political efficacy, 210–211
- Power, 11
- Practitioners, 134
- Pre-K, 14–15
- Professional, personal and private concept (3P's concept),
114–115
- Professional development, 2
- Professional learning implications for, 56–58
metacognitive role model, 56–57
process, 25
PVTs as prompt for professional reflectivity, 57–58
reality of educational context before, 26–29
- Professional reflectivity, PVTs as prompt for, 57–58
- Professionals, 12
- Prompt Stimulation Video (PSV), 124,
129–131
- Protagonism, 226
- Psychology, 11
- Public, 134
- Pupil consultation, 40
- Pupil views templates (PVTs), 41, 43 example of completed, 42
fostering ongoing dialogue about
learning, 46–47
implications for professional learning, 56–58
introducing and using PVTs with children, 43–44
learning, 48–56
overcoming potential challenges,
44–46
pupil's experience of differentiation,
52
- Pupil voice, 40, 63–64
- authentic participants, 67–68 awareness of inequality of power relations and addressing issue, 68–69
establishing practices to support
pupil voice in classroom, 64–69
importance, 62–63
pupils determining focus of research, 65 requirement for participation and democratic inclusivity,
66–67
thinking, feeling and knowing,
65–66
unfulfilled promise of 'listening' to,
40–41
- Pupil Voice Templates (PVT), 2–3
- Pupil-led pedagogies, 62–63
- Pupils' perceptions of teaching and learning, 41
- Purposeful sampling, 146–147
- Reflective case study, 93–94
- Reggio Emilia approach, 75–76
- Relational practice, 110
- Relationships, 114–115
- Revoada project, 181
- Rich child, 76, 109–110
- Rights, 222
- Routes of participation, 147–149
- Saskia, analysis using Diamond Model to support, 113–117
empowerment, 113–114
holistic learning, 116–117
relationships, 114–115
- Scepticism, 15
- Schooling, 74–75
- Schools, 61–62, 73–74
- Shared decision-making, 180
children as social actors, 178–179 context, 180–187
data gathering, 186–187
deep process, 192
findings, 187–192

- places for children and children's
 - places, 179–180
 - research, project and sessions, 181
 - sessions developed and evolved, 181–186
- Snowball sampling, 146–147
- Social pedagogy, 11, 75–76, 109–110
 - analysis using Diamond Model to support Saskia, 113–117
 - case study review, 117–118
 - haltung, 110–111
 - participation and, 111–112
- Social policy, 11
- Social space for children's
 - participation, 93
- Socialisation, 166–167
- Sociology of childhood, 167
- Space, 40, 122–123
- Student voice, 63–64
- SurveyMonkey, 4, 130

- Trust-based relationships, 2

- United Nations Convention of the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), 2, 40, 92–93, 142–143, 178, 212

- Value of being part of educational network, 189–190

- Value of opportunity, 209–210
- Value social pedagogy, 4
- Virtual learning environment (VLE), 129
- Voice, 3, 40, 63, 73–74, 122–123, 143, 146, 211, 213
 - fighting for, 220–221

- Well-being, 94, 117–118
- World congress justice with children, 198

- Yoruba culture, 167
- Young children's engagement, 93
- Young people, 122
- Younger siblings, helping with daily
 - domestic chores and taking care of, 150–153
- Youth political participation
 - case study, 208–215
 - creating space for change, 206–207
 - idea, 205–206
 - methods, 207–208
 - thinking, 207
- Youth protest in Chile, 220
- Youth-centred practices,
 - intergenerational commitment to, 202
- Youth-centred research initiative, 6
- YouTube, 4