

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Eleanor Ross is a former journalist who started her career at the Guardian, and then spent the next 10 years covering sustainability, business and foreign affairs for a variety of publications including Newsweek, the i, the Sunday Times and the BBC. Her corporate communications work has taken her from the United Nations to FTSE 50 companies, and she currently consults for companies on the best way to communicate sustainability and mitigate risk.