

INDEX

- Active labour market
 - policy (ALMP), 87
- ALMP. See Active labour market policy (ALMP)
- Anglo-Saxon model, 9–11, 107–108
- Blue-collar and low-skilled workers, 35
- British labour market, 15–16, 50–51, 81, 90–91, 122–123, 147–148
- British minimum wage, 84
- Capitalist economies, 9, 107
- Central and Eastern Europe (CEE) countries, 1–2, 11–12, 55–57
- CMEs. See Coordinated market economies (CMEs)
- Contract, types of, 88–91
- Coordinated market economies (CMEs), 9, 107
 - characteristic, 114
- Corruption, 54–55, 125–126
- Cultural bias, 69–70
- Economic crisis, 71–72
- Economic recession, 91
- Economic security, 31–32
- Economic support, 138–139
- Educational attainment, 37–39
- Educational migration, 41
- Emigration, 26–27, 119, 136–137
- Emigration-immigration country, 3
- Employment, 27, 29
 - agencies, 54–55
 - benefits, 114
 - contract, 120–121
 - flexible forms of, 11–12
 - in Poland, 13–14
 - precarious, 93–94
 - protection, 29–30, 52–55, 114
 - quality of, 88–91
 - tenure, 139

- Employment protection legislation (EPL), 52–54, 91–93
- Employment Protection Legislation Index, 15–16
- Employment security, 4–5, 14–15, 26–27, 30, 32–33, 50–51, 74–75, 147–148, 149–150
- flexible forms, 35–36
- model, 95–96
- term and the concept, 35–36
- “varieties of capitalism” (VoC) concept, 107–111
- Enhanced employability, 35–36
- Entrepreneurs, 141–142
- EPL. See Employment protection legislation (EPL)
- ESS. See European Social Survey (ESS)
- Eurobarometer, 36–37, 96
- European Economic Area, 47–48
- European Social Survey (ESS), 15–16, 36–37, 68–69
- European Working Conditions Survey (EWCS), 15–16, 68–69, 71–72
- Eurostat, 96
- databases, 15–16
- EWCS. See European Working Conditions Survey (EWCS)
- Family benefits, economic support, 138–139
- Financial capital, 46–47
- Fixed-term employment contracts, 13–14
- Flexibilisation of work, 27–28
- Flexible security, 50–51
- Flexicurity model, 35–36, 51, 95–96
- Foreigner hiring, 53–54
- Free market economic principles, 135–139
- German labour markets, 15–17, 120, 122–123
- Germany
- coordinated market economy, 105–106
- current employment, 77–79
- employment type, 88–90
- low-wage earners, 85–86
- median income, 83–84
- migration policy, 134–135, 141–142
- Polish employees in, 105–106
- Polish labour migrants, 111–112
- unemployment in, 79–80
- “Grey zone”, 143–144
- of economy, 86–87, 96
- of labour market, 13–14

- High job security, 77–79
- High-skilled immigrants, 52
- Human and social capital indicators, 37–39
- Human labour, 30–31
- ILO. See International Labour Organization
(ILO)
- Income security, 14–15, 31–32
and labour market
security, 119–120
- Industrial democracies,
25–26
- Industrial societies, 29–30
- Inferior and underprivileged labour market status, 30–31
- Insecurity, 27–28, 33–34
- Institutional and welfare state models, 26–27
- International labour market, 36
- International Labour
Organization (ILO),
68–69
- Job insecurity, 33–34,
71–72, 109–110
- Job loss, 71–72, 79
- Job permanency, 114
- Job placement system, 12
- Job related education and training, 87–88
- Job-related security,
33–34
- Job security, 14–15,
31–33, 44–46,
50–51, 112–114,
126–127, 134–135,
141–142, 147–148,
149–150
and employment security, 33–39
level, 72–74, 105–106 preference for, 111, 116
socio-economic model,
79–80
See also Employment
- Labour Code,
14–15, 91
- Labour Inspectorate,
143–144
- Labour legislation,
136–137
and social security systems, 144–145
- Labour market
arrangements, 114
- Labour market instability,
88–90
- Labour market security,
30, 32, 44–46
income security and,
119–120, 120
individual and collective goals, accomplishment, 27–33
as migration decisions,
co-determinant,
39–48
migration goals
achievement, 48–55

- objective indicators, 79–82
- subjective indicators, 69–79
- Labour migrations, 55–57, 107–111
- Labour permits, 125–126, 143–144
- Labour protection
 - legislation, 26–27, 53–54
- Labour relations and employment policy, 37–39
- Labour union density, 109–110
- Large-scale lay-offs, 91
- Liberal market economies (LMEs), 9–11, 107, 110–112
- Life-time employment, 36
- Lower-educated
 - immigrants, 44–46
- Low-wage earners, 85–86
- Macro-level economic parameters, 37–39
- Marketable qualifications and skills, 140–141
- Migrants, 5–6, 51
 - choice of destination
 - country
 - in-depth interviews, 119–126
 - survey data analysis, 116–119
 - individual decisions, 39
- Migrant workers, 32–33
- “Migration policy”, 134
 - cross-country differences, 133
 - immigration policies, 131–133
 - labour market security, 133
 - meso- and macro-level perspectives, 131–133
 - “push and pull” theory, 131–133
 - receiving countries, 139–145
 - sending countries, 135–139
 - “welfare” magnet hypothesis, 131–133
- Migration-related
 - decisions, 14, 42, 147
 - co-determinant, 39–48
 - goals achievement, 48–55
 - See also* Labour migrations
- Migration-related factor, 6–7
- Minimum Wage Database, 84
- Minimum wages, 84, 85, 114
- National economies, VoC concept, 110–111
- Native workers and labour protection legislation, 53–54
- “New countries of immigration”, 1–2

- Objective indicators,
 - labour market security
 - “frictional unemployment”, 79–80
 - job security, socio-economic model, 79–80
 - period of fluctuation, 79–80
 - public expenditures, 82, 83
 - in Ukraine, 80–81
 - unemployment and unemployed social expenditures, 79–82
 - in United Kingdom, 81
- Occupational stratification ladder, 75
- Office for Foreigners, 54–55
- Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), 68–69
 - databases, 15–16
- Poland
 - anxiety of losing a job, 71–72
 - labour market security in, 124–125
 - labour migrants from, 105–106
 - low-wage earners, 85–86, 88–90
 - migration policy, 134–135
 - security of employment, 71–72
 - trade unions in, 93
 - Ukrainians working in, 123–124
 - unemployment in, 79–80
 - wages in, 123–124
 - work-related anxiety, 71–72
- Polish emigrants, 3, 9–11, 147–148
- Polish immigration
 - regulations, 13–14
- Polish labour market, 2–3, 96–97, 124–125
- Polish labour migrants, 105–106, 111–112
 - job security preference, 116, 116
 - predictors of, 117
- Polish-language literature, 11–12
- Post-accession migration, 1–2
- Post-Fordism, 27–28
- Precarious employment, 93–94
 - “Precarious” employment, 109–110
 - “Precarious” migration, 14–15
 - “Preference for job security”, 114–115, 116–119
- Professional and spatial mobility, 28
- Professional training and re-training, 137–138

- “Push and pull factors”,
6–7, 17–19, 26–27,
42, 43–44
- Rate of employment, 8–9
- Rate of poverty, 8–9
- Receiving countries,
migration policy
entrepreneurs, 141–142
“grey zone”, 143–144
immigrants categories,
140
- Labour Inspectorate,
143–144
- labour legislation and social security systems,
144–145
- labour permits,
143–144
- marketable qualifications and skills, 140–141
- social benefits, 142–143
- stability of employment,
140–141
- stable employment
contract, 141–142
- visa policies, 139
- Representation security,
31–32
- Residence permits, 2–3,
125–126
- Rights of foreigners,
13–14
- Rights of workers, 55
- Seasonal workers, 46–47
- “Secure job”, 70–71
- Semi-legal jobs, 13–14
- Sending countries,
migration policy
change of employment,
136–137
- economic support,
138–139
- emigration of people,
136–137
- free market economic principles, 135–139
- labour legislation,
136–137
- professional training and re-training, 137–138
- state of stability,
136–137
- Short-term contracts,
108–109
- Skill reproduction
security, 31
- “Social anchoring”,
109–110
- Social benefits, 142–143
- Social indicators, 68–69
- Social market economy,
11–12
- Spatial mobility, 41
- Stable employment, 27,
46–47, 136–137,
143–144
- contract, 141–142
- State-funded benefits, 7–8, 95–96
- State-funded “bonuses”,
114
- State Statistics Service of Ukraine (SSSU),
68–69

- Subjective indicators,
 - labour market security
 - anxiety of losing a job, 71–72, 73
 - cultural bias, 69–70
 - degree of respondents' anxiety, 75–77
 - employment security, 74–75
 - European Working Conditions Survey, 71–72
 - high job security, 77–79
 - job insecurity, 71–72
 - job loss for employed persons, 71–72
 - occupational stratification ladder, 75
 - worker opinions, cross-country differences, 77–79
 - work performance, 75
 - work-related anxiety, 71–72
 - work-related security, 70–71
- Switchable assets, 108–109

- Threat of unemployment, 33–34
- Trade unions, 55, 93
 - position, 91–93
- Ukraine
 - immigrants, 47–48
 - migrants from, 125
 - migration policy, 134–135
- Uncertainty and insecurity, 30–31
- Unemployment
 - insurance, 55
 - rates, 37–39, 91, 95–96
 - and unemployed social expenditures, 79–82
- United Kingdom
 - alternative (comparable) employment, 75
 - Anglo-Saxon model, 107–108
 - employment protection legislation, 91–93
 - employment security, 77–79
 - liberal market economy, 105–106
 - low-wage earners, 85–86
 - Polish labour migrants, 111–112, 115
 - self-perceived employment security, 74–75
 - trade unions in, 93
 - unemployment rate, 79–80
- “Varieties of capitalism” (VoC) concept, 9–11, 105, 106–107
 - behavior of firms, 108–109
 - coordinated market economies (CMEs), 107

- coordination
 - mechanisms, 108–109
- data and concept of
 - analysis, 111–116
- degree of “ambiguity”, 110–111
- and employment security, 107–111
- employment security,
 - preferences, 111
- institutional features, 109–110
- “institutionally coherent”, 110–111
- job security,
 - preferences, 111
- labour union density, 109–110
- liberal market economies (LMEs), 107, 108–109
- long-term survival, 108–109
- national economies, 110–111
- “precarious”
 - employment, 109–110
- short-term contracts, 108–109
- “social anchoring”, 109–110
- stock market
 - capitalization, 108–109
- strategic interaction, 107–108
- structural conditions, 109–110
- switchable assets, 108–109
 - “via hierarchies and competitive market arrangements”, 107–108
- Visa policies, 139
- Voluntary migration, 41
- Wage levels, 95–96
- Welfare magnet
 - hypothesis, 14–15, 52
- Welfare migration, 14–15
- Welfare systems, 51–52
- Workers
 - categories, 14, 34–35
 - economic well-being of, 83–87
 - employability, 87–88
 - opinions, cross-country differences, 77–79
 - rights and privileges, 27–28
- Work permit, 17–19
- Work-related anxiety, 71–72
- Work-related security, 35–36, 70–71, 88–90
- Work security, 31
- WSI Minimum Wage, 68–69
- Zero-hour contracts, 29–30, 50–51, 109–110