ABOUT THE EDITORS

R. Mark Isaac is the John and Hallie Quinn Eminent Scholar and Professor of Economics at Florida State University in Tallahassee, FL, USA. His Doctoral degree is from the California Institute of Technology. He has published numerous journal articles and book chapters on the economics of law, regulation, antitrust, and property rights, including papers in the Bell and Rand Journal, the Journal of Law and Economics, the Journal of Political Economy, the Journal of Regulatory Economics, Research in Experimental Economics, the Journal of Urban Economics, and the Journal of Environmental Economics and Management. Many, but not all, of these papers use laboratory experimental methods. He is the co-author with Charles Plott and David Grether of the “underground classic” book The Allocation of Scarce Resources: Experimental Economics and the Problem of Allocating Airport Slots.

Carl Kitchens is the Bernard Sliger Scholar and Associate Professor of Economics at Florida State University in Tallahassee, FL, USA. His Doctoral degree is from the University of Arizona. He has published numerous journal articles, encyclopedia chapters, and book reviews on topics in economic history, place-based policy, and property rights. These papers have appeared in outlets including The Review of Economics and Statistics, The Journal of Economic History, Explorations in Economic History, Experimental Economics, and the Journal of Urban Economics, among others. Many of these and other papers combine methodologies from applied microeconomics and experimental economics.
